

Christine Watson-Brown

Master of Organisational Psychology, Macquarie University 1998/99

Bachelor of Arts (Honours) Psychology, Macquarie University 1995

Member, Australian Psychological Society

Associate Member, College of Organisational Psychologists

Registered Psychologist (AHPRA)

Background

Christine is a registered psychologist with over 14 years experience working in the areas of Human Resources and Consulting within large corporate organisations and small to medium enterprises in Australia and across Asia Pacific.

Most recently Christine was involved in developing and implementing a diversity strategy within a large Corporate Australian Business. Prior to this she has held roles as a Regional HR Business Partner in Asia responsible for recruiting and building talent pipelines and as a Senior HR Consultant working across various industry sectors in the Asia Pacific region to identify and develop high potential employees.

Christine's professional experience has enabled her to develop knowledge and expertise across many critical areas of the HR function including; high potential identification and development, talent management, diversity, cultural change, performance management, competency design and employee engagement.

Christine has a particular interest in assessment and leadership development. Another area of passion is with regard to employee well-being and assisting organisations to build great places to work.

Expertise

- Organisational Development
- Talent Management and Succession Planning
- Talent Acquisition
- Leadership Assessment and Development
- High Potential Assessment and Development
- Performance Management
- Employee Engagement
- Cultural Change
- Diversity
- Project Management
- Competency Development
- HR Business Partner (provision of strategic and operational advice)

Sector Experience

- Professional Services
- Retail Banking
- Investment Banking
- Finance
- Insurance
- Shipping
- Telecommunications
- Not for Profit